Artist Bio: Heather Zhelaine grew up in the mountain splendor of Estes Park, Colorado, surrounded by the breathtaking beauty of nature that continues to inspire her to this day. Her family ran a thriving handcrafted retail store in the community for 25 years, born from the artistry of her father (a talented woodworker) and mother (who created gorgeous pottery). The couple also crafted wind chimes in those early years, with the 6-year old Heather rolling beads for musical art -- strummed by nature and made of earth, wood and wire. Was it then that Heather found her life's calling?

Jewelry by Zhelaine, Inc. came to be in 1990 while Heather attended Colorado State University. Through her studies in anthropology she was exposed to wonderful people and cultures throughout the world. In 1995, inspired by the diverse world of Native Americans (specifically Zuni), the *STONE*essence line was born. It began with a few simple bear and multi-inlay designs, and over the years has blossomed into 400 unique designs. The line now incorporates hundreds of wonderful Earthy, organic and rocky gemstone styles of jewelry all hand made in Fort Collins, Colorado.

Jewelry by Zhelaine is a values-driven organization, and Heather believes in fostering creativity in staff and cultivating the next generation of jewelry designers. For the past 15 years Heather has hired CSU students with specialties in art and jewelry to not only hand-make the line, but also offer new and unique design perspectives.

Heather attends all her trade shows and is pleased to say she knows each of her customers as individuals and takes great joy in making every customer feel valued -- from small shops to multi-site chains. The relationships sometimes even results in new designs as she responds to customer requests.

"I love designing and creating with all the many stones and gemstones in our world. I continue to search for that next 'big thing' that will inspire us and ultimately our customers!" Heather says. "It is my desire to continue providing unique, high quality products, the best customer service and competitively priced hand-made jewelry from Colorado! I believe that we small business owners are the backbone of our nation! We provide the artists a place to thrive and give our customers a product of value that will last for years to come."
